

CRUISER LENA CAN STAY HERE

For Repairs, But Gunboat Paul Jones Is Keeping Close Watch on Her.

STARVATION THREATENS AN ARMY

Food Supply for Russians May Be Cut Short at Mukden--Prince Ukiomski Not Executed.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
London, Sept. 13.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Kuroki's headquarters states that skirmishes between the Russian and Japanese advance guards are taking place with increasing frequency. Although the troops are wearing a general battle is expected.

Starvation Threatens
St. Petersburg, Sept. 13.—Reports from Mukden this morning state that heavy rain still continues. It is said of the Russians quartered at Mukden that they are in danger of starvation.

May Repair Ship Here
Washington, Sept. 13.—After a conference between officials of the state department this morning it is announced that the Russian cruiser "Lena" at San Francisco was in actual need of repairs requiring about six weeks to complete them, and that she may stay in port. Under international law she would be permitted to make these repairs, but nothing in addition to the repairs necessary to make her seaworthy will be permitted by the United States authorities.

Many Denials Entered
St. Petersburg, Sept. 13.—Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese have concentrated at Yuan Puzha, south of Mukden. Denial is made of the report that Linvitch is advancing from Vladivostok to cut off Kuroki's communications. Kuropatkin is now reorganizing the troops, demoralized by the retreat from Mukden. The story that Prince Ukiomski had been shot at Port Arthur for disobedience orders is denied. It is stated, however, that he will be recalled. It is also denied that three thousand of Gen. Zassalitch's force were captured. Reports of Chinese troops concentrating in the valley of the Liao river are causing considerable concern here.

Bollers Inspected
San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 13.—In inspection of the Russian cruiser "Lena's" bollers began this morning under the direction of the collector of the port. The gunboat "Paul Jones" kept watch of the Russian ship all night.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Japan has formally protested to the United States government against allowing the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena, which arrived in San Francisco Sunday, to remain in port longer than twenty-four hours.

The protest, which came from the Japanese consul at San Francisco, through the collector of customs there, has caused a great stir in official circles here. The government at present faces a problem which it had all along hoped it would avoid. Japan insists on the vessel leaving port at the expiration of twenty-four hours, but the government officials, owing to a lack of information regarding the condition of the Russian vessel, are in a quandary and the question is causing a great deal of worry.

Delay Due to Error.
An error on the part of the collector of customs at San Francisco is responsible, it is claimed, for the delay in notifying the government of the cruiser's arrival. The collector's telegram officially notifying the government of the arrival of the Lena, together with Japan's protest, was addressed to the secretary of the treasury, who at once sent copies to Acting Secretary of State Adee and Acting Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, who has direct jurisdiction in the matter.

Puzzles the Officials.
The collector's telegram came after office hours and the officials were somewhat puzzled that there should have been so much delay in sending it. There was a good deal of reticence on the subject on the part of the officials of the department of commerce and the bureau of navigation, who preferred to await the report of the steamboat inspector before making any statement. This report, it is expected, will be received some time during the night, so that the Lena will have been in port over twenty-four hours before the question of her right to tie up for repairs is determined.

Morton Details Fleet.
Secretary Morton, as soon as he learned of the matter, promptly sought the advice of the state department, sending Captain Pillsbury, acting chief of the navigation bureau, over to see Acting Secretary Adee. The latter in turn called for Judge Penfield, the department's solicitor, and a conference ensued between the three men, lasting half an hour, after which Secretary Morton telegraphed Rear Admiral Goodrich, commander in chief of the Pacific station, to detain the Pacific squadron at San Francisco for emergency. Then the statement was made that after all this was not a matter which at this stage concerned the state department, but rather it is within the jurisdiction of the treasury department.

Treasury Officials Must Act.
The presence of the Russian transport, so-called, in San Francisco harbor involves the application of the United States neutrality laws and it was said at the state department that it was the duty, under the president's proclamation of neutrality, for the treasury officials there, the collector of customs and surveyor of the port and the United States district attorney in San Francisco to take any action in this matter.

It is said at the state department that in international law there is no difference recognized between a transport and a battleship, though there seemed to be an intimation conveyed in the San Francisco dispatches that the captain of the Russian ship thought otherwise and was disposed to claim exemption from the rules of war applying to naval ships.

That being the case it is probable that the government here will follow closely the course pursued by Germany and naval vessels sought shelter in their harbors.

Japanese Advance Rapidly.
London, Sept. 13.—While official news from the seat of war is lacking, it is reported here that the Japanese again are advancing rapidly on the Russians. This seems to discredit the previous information that the forces of Oyama had abandoned their advance and were taking a good rest.

The Daily Mail's correspondent with the Japanese army reports from Tien-Tai the report that Lieut. Gen. Linvitch with 50,000 men had invaded northwestern Korea and cut Gen. Kuroki's communication with Feng-Wang-Cheng.

According to the Morning Post official Russian dispatches received in London announce that Lieut. Gen. Zassalitch, who commanded the portion of the Russian rear guard south of the Hun river, has been severely wounded and captured with 3,000 out of his 5,000 men. The Post adds that Gen. Zarobaloff, Kondratovich and Biderling have checked Gen. Kuroki's advance.

Russia Feels Humiliation.
But little war news is received here from St. Petersburg, however, and what few dispatches come indicate that the general staff, the emperor and all of Russia still feel the humiliation of the stunning defeat of Gen. Kuropatkin. Advice says that rumors of Kuropatkin's removal are being revived and that it is likely that he will be superseded by Lieut. Gen. Linvitch. The reported resignation of Viceroy Alexieff also is revived.

According to information from St. Petersburg the Russian army is having a difficult time trying to keep track of the movements of the Japanese. The tactics of the forces of Oyama seem to puzzle Kuropatkin and his men and it is said that every time the Japanese withdraw from the front of the Russians a flanking attack invariably follows. These attacks have been a source of much annoyance to the Russians. They try to resist them, but the Japs always appear when least expected.

No new developments regarding the situation at Port Arthur have been received here.

Opens Another Chapter.

The Morning Post's Japanese critic in London says the arrival of the Russian transport Lena at San Francisco "opens another chapter in the somewhat long account which the history of the present war will have to give in connection with the observance by the various powers of neutrality obligations. That the United States will be resolute and prompt in the enforcement of its laws goes without saying.

"The subtleties which served Russia's turn where Chinese neutrality had been in question will not suffice to secure a prolongation of the Lena's stay when Californian harbors are concerned. That the appearance of the Lena at San Francisco coincides with the projected shipments of large quantities of flour and other cargoes to Japan from the Pacific coast is a circumstance which United States officials assuredly will not fail to observe."

WISCONSIN GETS WALTER STEFFEN

Football Player Several Universities Were Seeking, Goes to Madison.—Expect a Heavy Team.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 13.—Walter Steffen, the spectacular track and gridiron performer of the North Division high school of Chicago, arrived in Madison last night and will try for the position of quarterback on the University of Wisconsin football team. This is regarded as a great acquisition the credit of which belongs to Graduate Manager Kilpatrick who has had his eye on the man for years. McCormack of Northwestern, Stagg of Chicago and West of Michigan were anxious to secure the young athlete and in spite of their strong inducements their efforts proved futile. Steffen when in training weighs less than 140 pounds. He is reputed to be much superior than the famous Eckersall of Chicago as a quarterback, drop kicker and football field general. His ability in the latter respect is likely to prove powerful in securing for him the place on the Badger team. Coach Curtis is determined, however, that Wisconsin shall have a heavy team this fall, and the material at hand comprises fourteen men of more than 155 pounds weight each. Unless these are "blatant out" by more clever light weight men, the determination of Curtis to have a beefy team will be easy of attainment.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRE.
The second United Presbyterian church at Washington, Iowa, celebrated its fifteenth anniversary. Rev. Leo I. Jeffries died at Cheltenham from wounds he sustained when he was shot by Mrs. Gertrude Langley. The steamer Germania, after being aground all night outside Sandy Hook, New York, got off without assistance. Joseph Elkins, aged 23 years, a Frisco brakeman, was run over and killed at Pana, Ill., while making his first trip on the road. In a friendly boxing bout Alexander Tilghman, a waiter, received a body blow which was followed by almost instant death at Atlantic City, N. J.

Gus A. Henkelman, alias Sid Hall, aged about 26, was shot and killed at Detroit, Mich., while trying to escape from Detective John Burr. Governor Van Sant of Minnesota appointed a committee consisting of all the state senators and representatives as delegates to the Mississippi river convention at Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 15 and 16.

Enraged because he had been censured for keeping late hours, Edward Dennis, 17 years old, shot his grandfather, F. H. Mesler, at New Springfield, Staten Island, and then fatally wounded himself.

A life of Andree, the lost explorer, is to be issued by the geographical society of Stockholm, of which he was a member.

DARING HOLD-UP ON ROCK ISLAND ROAD TODAY

Robbers Manned Train Near Letts, Iowa, and Got Away with Twenty Thousand Dollars.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Davenport, Ia., Sept. 13.—Five masked men held up a Rock Island passenger train near Letts, Ia., at 12:10 this morning. They entered the express car, blew up the safe, and partly destroyed the car. The engineer and fireman were compelled to leave the engine which was detached and run through Letts at a terrific speed. They secured all the valuables in the car, which were said to be worth from ten to twenty thousand dollars. The engine was abandoned near Columbus. A large posse is in pursuit. Empty money sacks have been found along the way indicating that the haul was large. The robbers were encamped across the Mississippi from Muscatine, four days, and police have good description.

SEVEN KILLED IN NEW YORK BLAZE

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
New York, Sept. 13.—Seven are dead and several injured as the result of a fire which destroyed a five-story tenement on Seventy-first street early today. The dead: Anton Gorenwitz; wife Annie; two twin baby boys, three weeks old; three men, names unknown. The dead were all on the top floor. Many tenants were rescued with difficulty. The fire is believed to be of incendiary origin.

TRAINS CARRYING THE TEMPLARS IN COLLISION

Disobedience of Orders Leads to Bad Smash-up at Lawton, Nev.—Two Killed and Seven Injured.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 13.—Two men were scalded to death and seven passengers were injured Monday by a collision between Southern Pacific passenger trains at Lawton, seven miles west of Reno.

The dead: A. L. Hicks, fireman of train No. 5. Unidentified man. The injured: Mrs. John Swan, Galesburg, Ill. R. Ridley Morgan, Ridgeway, Pa. P. H. Campbell, Freeman, Ohio. George Summerfield, Cleveland. Mrs. M. Galt, Ogden, Utah. James Hall, Clairville, Cal. C. C. Barber, Oakland, Cal. I. Diggs, Oakland.

R. W. Farr, Oakland. F. R. Saliday, Oakland. T. J. Craft, Oakland.

The injured have been brought here, and it is believed all will recover. The second section of westbound train No. 5, while running at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour, crashed into the third section of eastbound train No. 6 carrying a large party of returning Knights Templar. Each train was a double-header with a heavy train of Pullmans.

DID JUST AS THE GOVERNOR WISHED

As Expected, the Defunct State Central Committee Decided His Convention Was Regular.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 13.—As was naturally expected the old republican state central committee decided that the La Follette convention was the regular republican convention. The committee met in this city yesterday pursuant to a call by Secretary of State Houser in accordance with section 55 of the revised statutes of Wisconsin for 1898. Attorneys for the stalwarts appeared and filed objection to the action which the committee proposed to take in determining the regularity of the opera-house and gymnastium conventions. In view of the fact that the factional controversy is now pending a decision in the supreme court, the highest tribunal in the state, makes the action taken by the old committee, which is out of existence and which is composed of men friendly to La Follette, appear ridiculous and nonsensical.

WHEAT TAKES A FLIGHT SKYWARD

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)
Chicago, Sept. 13.—New September wheat which closed at $1.09 1/2 last night, shot up to $1.12 this morning. May advanced from $1.14 1/2, closing at $1.17. Corn and oats also advanced in sympathy. Bull influences were based on higher cables and the improved demand for flour with a scarcity of cash wheat.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—Maine gave a Republican plurality of about 30,000 in Monday's election. William T. Cobb, Republican candidate for governor, has a plurality of about 30,000. The Republican majority in the state election in 1902 was 25,247, and in 1900 it was 33,384. Monday's election shows a Republican gain of about 2,000 over 1902, and is not far behind 1900. The returns are still incomplete, but as only a few towns remain to be heard from it is not likely that the total will be changed much one way or the other.

SHREWD MEN CONCEDE COMMITTEE BLUNDERED

Ill Advised Action of the Old State Central Organization Will Defeat Its Own End.

(Special Correspondence.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 13.—From now on the word inertia is to be blotted from the political dictionary of Wisconsin politicians. The campaign is to be opened in Milwaukee on Friday next by Malcolm C. Jeffris and from then until the election returns are counted in November actively along all lines will be the marked nature of the work. No time is to be lost in impressing the voters of the state with the questions which confront them. La Folletteism or republicanism is the burning question. Yesterday afternoon there assembled in the ruined state capital, a political corpse. Amid the blackened walls of the desecrated capitol this strange fantasy of the administration's policy met and behind closed doors followed out the dictation of the rule or ruin policy that has controlled the state affairs for the past four years. That they decided in accordance with the wish of the chief executive is a foregone conclusion. That they have no legal right of existence is a point in law. The state central committee elected at the time of the republican convention of 1902 died when its work of unseating regularly elected republican delegates to the 1904 convention was completed. Yet it was called together to follow the dictates of the administration and declare that their convention, the convention held in the armory, was the republican convention of Wisconsin. Acting in direct contradiction to the decision of the national republican committee on credentials and permanent organizations this committee acted as ordered and declared that Robert La Follette was the duly nominated candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Irrespective of the supreme court decision which may come within a week this committee has set itself above party, above law and followed the rule or ruin policy. What effect this decision will have on the people of the state is not known. Whether it will affect the chances of the governor for good or bad is not now figured. It gives him, however, a leg to stand on if the supreme court turns him down.

All is serene in the republican camp. All is confusion in the La Follette. The capital corridors were filled with eager and excited men who stood in little groups and talked in whispers as though they feared the walls would disclose their dead secrets. In front of the state treasury department Acting Treasurer Purcell stood with one foot inside the door as though he would fear a sudden advent of State Treasurer Kempt and the little group that had gathered about him should be done. The secretary of state's office was locked. It needed a peculiar knock and word to secure admittance. Republicans were at a discount. They were not wanted, but La Follette supporters found ready access to the sacred shrine.

A bomb shell was exploded by Attorney John M. Olin who served the committee with a slight remembrance in the shape of an official notice that their action was not legal, in so much as a defunct body cannot sit in judgment on the acts of their own creating. Sentiment in Madison and Milwaukee seems to be that the old state central committee blundered. Their advance decision, which would disprove the supreme court decision, if it is contrary to their own, is not considered good taste. To the La Follette men it is a victory and they cheer in a loud and hollow manner. To the republicans who have in the past wavered between the true principles and the La Follette claims it is a body-blow. They feel that unless the supreme court decides in their favor they must either desert the republican party for strange craft or cast off their love and admiration for the little reformer and step back into the republican ranks as laymen. They are disappointed men who have supported and believed in the reformer's doctrine for the past six years are discouraged. The announcement that the republican campaign is to be started on Friday night next and pushed with a vim and vigor until election has ended all hopes of a compromise on any ground whatsoever. They have been blinded by the idea of La Follette and Roosevelt clubs but now they see affairs in their true light. Rule or ruin, law or no law, party precedence or not, La Follette means to win and has shown the cloven hoof in the recent action of the state central committee which acted at his call and according to his will. The will power of the people is set aside and it is to be La Follette or an empty treasury. Questions will be asked Mr. La Follette and his secretary of state within a week which he dare not answer. Letters are to be sent to Cortelyou which will startle the state. They are now ready for the press but will be held until the time comes for their effectiveness to be used to the best advantage.

WHIR OF WHEELS ON BUSY AVENUE

NORTH MAIN ST. TOILING FOR WORLD MARKETS.

LITTLE MACHINERY IS IDLE

Big Castings, Windmills, Farm Implements, Wooden Ware and Co-real Products in the Making.

If the amount of traffic upon a thoroughfare indicated the amount of manufacturing going on there, North Main street would probably be settled upon as the most prosperous in that line. The St. Paul freight depot being located there is responsible for a great deal, but there are also many enterprising manufacturers that are not so much noted for their size as for the scope of territory they cover and the class of machinery that is built.

Shipments to Japan turn out some of the largest machines made, the shop has the record of having built the largest ever shipped out of Janesville. Their productions are punches, shears, roller rolls, bender rolls and loading machines. Prominent among their customers are the United States Government and Japan.
The machines for "Uncle Sam" are used in the navy yards and arsenals.
Manufactures throughout the union are also large buyers. When asked concerning the number of men employed Mr. Richardson said: "About the same as last year, forty or fifty men." The immense castings in both brass and iron that are turned out are remarkable.

The Rock River Machine Shops Punching machines, shears, and sheet-metal working machines are what twenty-six hands are busily moulding, fitting and putting together the year round at the Rock River Machine Company's shops. The machines are sold in all the manufacturing centers of the country and occasionally to distant points on the globe. The domestic trade is most carefully watched and catered to,
being considered by the management as the most profitable. The whole force works ten hours a day on six days of the week. "The Saturday afternoon off system" commencing next week will be abolished.

The Hay Tool Company
Hay is a product of every state in the union and hay tools are used in each state. The Rock River Hay Tool Company manufacture a hay-carrier that is equipped with an attachment originated and patented by F. D. Strickler. Hay-forks, trackers for the same, special hardware, garden rakes and garden hoses are also manufactured. Salesmen cover the territory north of the Ohio river east of the Missouri and every other state is supplied through jobbers and by mail orders.

The Globe Windmill
Globe windmills are unlike other motive power machines, of their class in that the box, instead of being constructed of habit, is wholly of wood. Wood has a lasting quality that makes the life of the box of that material more than double the life of a babbit box. Eight jobbers in the north-western territory are selling the Globe windmill. J. Richardson also deals in the Doty washing machine of which there has been over 200,000 manufactured, and the water pipes and hydraulic engines. Five men are employed in the shops the full year.

Manufacturing Barrels
In the old building south of the New Doty Works the barrels that carry Blodgett's buck-wheat and rye in their long travels to their distant and short travels to their near destinations, are made. Two men are continually putting together the staves and then hooping the barrels.

Taylor & Lowell
On the central floor of the building in which is located the Kent Corn Planter works is the Taylor & Lowell machine shop. Six men are employed to turn out woven-wire fencing, gasoline engines and special machinery. The engine department was just started this summer but will soon be one of the most prominent features of the shop.

Kent Corn Planter
Formerly the Kent Corn Planter works have run only during the months from September to May, but
C. C. Maclean, who recently purchased the factory, is figuring on different things under the simple farm machinery line, with the manufacture of which he intends to fill up the summer months. At present only the different parts are being cut from the raw material, but it is expected that the whole shop will be running in two weeks' time and the force of six men will be increased to ten. The Kent corn planter is a simple device but effects a great saving of labor, and farmers throughout the corn sections of the United States and Canada appreciate the little machine. Shovel-corn-knives, and tobacco hatchets are also manufactured.

Cigar Boxes
Some seventy men and boys are busied the year round manufacturing the small wooden boxes that carry the "pure Havana" made from Cuban and Wisconsin leaf. This is the status of affairs at the Thoroughgood factory.

A Cure for Asthma

The worst cases of Asthma in the world succumb readily to the one great cure that never fails. Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann's Asthma Cure almost performs miracles.
Mr. R. M. Spencer, 2350 Vermont avenue, Toledo, O., says: "Asthma has been growing on me for 3 years, until last summer the attacks became so severe that many nights I spent half the time gasping for breath. Doctors seemed to give no relief whatever, and I felt there was no hope for me, when a drug clerk recommended your Asthma Cure. Its effect is truly magical and gives complete relief in from 2 to 5 minutes."

tor are shipped the cereal products of this section of the country. Immense quantities of rye, barley, oats,
and corn are sent into Milwaukee daily.
Manager Fletcher said: "All the grain crops are good this year, especially barley, which is better in color and heavier than last year. The prices are also good and stable."

IN THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Short Course at Madison Will Begin on December 3 and Close March 9.

The popular course for young farmers in the university known as the short course in agriculture opens this year Dec. 3d, continuing 14 weeks, closing March 9th. On account of many improvements and new lines of study introduced the work will be more interesting and important than ever. A new course in farm engineering will be given in connection with the other studies that will embrace rural architecture, farm machinery, farm motors, pumps and water supply and fence and road construction.
Special stress is placed upon the designing of houses, barns, silos, poultry buildings and the running of farm motors. No entrance examination required in the short course and no tuition charged to residents of Wisconsin. A practical course is thereby open to all who desire to better themselves in various lines of agriculture. Young men contemplating attending should send in application
at once to R. A. Moore, Madison, Wis., as all students are registered in advance of the opening date.

GYMNASIUM WORK TO START MONDAY

Y. M. C. A. Will Organize a Basket-Ball League for the Winter Games.

Beginning next Monday the first classes of the winter season at the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the gymnasium. There will be senior, intermediate, and junior sections. It is not probable that the business men's class will be organized immediately.
The majority of last year's members are expected back this season. The work is planned with the annual exhibition in view. There will be a league formed for the purpose of having a schedule of basket ball during the whole season.

CONCERT PLEASSED A LARGE AUDIENCE

May-Pole Dance, Songs by Quartette, and Solo Features of St. Mary's Choir Entertainment.

About five hundred spectators assembled at the Myers Grand opera-house last evening and were introduced to a novel musical program given under the auspices of St.
Mary's church choir. In the first part the pretty May-pole dance by fifty young girls and boys made a delightful hit with the audience. The quartet composed of Gus Bauchle, Andrew Gibbons, George Paris and Prof. J. S. Taylor rendered several excellent numbers which were highly appreciated by the audience, and were called upon to respond to many encores. The solo by Prof. J. S. Taylor was well received. Will F. Cody made the hit of the evening in his Chinese song and dance specialty that would have done credit to a professional. He was called upon to respond to repeated encores. The burlesque operetta which concluded the evening's entertainment was well received. Andrew Gibbons, Mrs. Chas.
Kneff, Miss Tessie Gibbons, Leola Slawson and Jennie Burke were especially good in their parts. The Cuckoo song by Gus Bauchle was well rendered and fully appreciated by the audience. The piano was presided at by Miss Tessie Gibbons, Mrs. Donnelly and Mrs. Dickinson of Minneapolis, and the musical features proved to be of a very high order. The performance was a credit to the choir and they were well repaid last evening for the efforts they have made during the past few weeks to bring this program to a successful end.

POLICE CALLED TO SNELL FARM ON MILTON AVENUE

Acting Chief of Police Brown and Officer Fanning After Apple Thieves.

Last evening the officers were called to the Snell farm on Milton avenue where a number of youths have of late been taking apples from the orchard, they having been warned several times by Mr. Snell and last night the police were sent for.
The boys made good their escape before the arrival of the officers, with a good supply of apples. They were apprehended after a short chase and all promised to be good in the future if the officers would not arrest them.
They were allowed to go on their promises.

ELGIN BUTTER MARKET

Simon Thompson in a recent article replies to the charges made by Francis Lynde in the Reader's Magazine that fatalities are more numerous on American than English roads.
Thompson's figures, authoritatively granted, show that during the year 1902 one person was killed for every 61 miles in England and the number is the same for America. He shows that the fatalities have decreased fifty per cent since 1893. He also claims that the American railroads stop at no expense in providing safeguards. Among the figures in his table, that are significant are that in 1902 there were 416 fatalities among passengers and 2,965 among the employees.

ONLY ONE CROP OF HAY IS CUT

SEASON HAS NOT BEEN FAVOR-ABLE FOR THE FIELDS.

VERY ANXIOUS ABOUT CORN

Frost Before October Will Do Much Injury to Late Stands; Stook Will Suffer—Tobacco Harvesting.

The largest work of harvesting the tobacco crop in Rock county and neighboring sections is centered on this week. Of the early crops it is believed that about twenty-five per cent matured before sufficient moisture came. The later crops received the full benefit of the generous rainfall during the latter part of August and barring frosts the leaf should be in fine condition soon. Light frosts which did no damage were reported at Evansville, Milton, and other sections Sunday night. On account of the cold season the tobacco seems to have prospered better in the sandy soil than elsewhere. Notwithstanding the fact that a large portion of the crop is to be cut this week it is generally believed that any heavy frost before the last of the month will injure a considerable portion and there is much anxiety and suspense on that account.

No Banner Corn Crop
It is generally conceded that Rock county is not to have a banner corn crop, in any event, but much more warm weather is needed to guarantee even a fair crop. On account of poor seed the stands have not averaged well. The last few warm days of the past week helped wonderfully but the cold of this week has been most unwelcome. Corn growers are hoping against hope that there will be no frost before October 1. The crop is badly needed. The crib is long empty of last year's corn and the fattening of stock cannot be attempted.
Sweet Corn Benefits
While the cool weather prevents the field corn from reaching maturity it is of direct benefit to the growers of sweet corn in that it hinders the latter's development and gives more time for the harvesting.
Rock county does not raise enough potatoes to supply its own markets, though more acres were planted this year than heretofore. Lack of moisture in midsummer injured this crop.
Cucumbers and cabbages have done well, both in this and neighboring counties.

Thrashing Finished
The thrashing machines have about finished their work with the barley, and rye, and the crops have averaged well. Strangely enough, though, clover seed costs $7 to $8
a bushel and is likely to be higher next year, practically no clover-hull-ing was done in this section.
No Second Hay Crop
The season was too dry for hay and clover, and the pastures suffered severely from the extreme drouth, though they are in better condition
now. No second crop of hay and clover developed and the month of July ended the season. Timothy seed for next year's crop is being sown by many at this time. Some of the fall plowing has commenced and it is expected that the heavy rain helped those who were ready, otherwise to begin.
The postponed corn-cutting will necessarily prevent many from beginning this work until much later.

Good Price for Rye
Rye is being sown extensively in the southern half of the county. The price this year was very satisfactory
—an unusual thing. Seventy cents a bushel was paid, whereas in former years the price has often been as low as thirty-five cents. The mills here grind more rye than similar concerns of their size in any part of the country and the market is therefore brought near at hand.

No Fat Hog
As has been stated the stock raising business has suffered much from the deficiency in the corn supply.
There are practically no fat hogs, nor can their fattening commence until the new corn crop is in. Cattle are at a standstill but the drouth has not materially affected the sheep. As far as poultry is concerned, more geese and ducks are being raised than ever before. It is also believed that the supply of turkeys for the fall market will be larger. The high prices of pork and beef have been followed by a corresponding raise in poultry quotations and the growing of them has become more profitable.

General Notes
It is predicted as a result of the election of President E. Jeffrey of the Denver and Rio Grande to the directorate of the Western Pacific dependent, the Gould system will be running through trains from Baltimore to San Francisco within two years. By this affiliate the 800 mile gap that barred the Gould lines from the Pacific has been closed.

the Visitation church. After a brief wedding tour the young couple will

News for the Railroad Men.

North-Western

The members of the Railroad Telegraphers' union in the city have received a circular from headquarters stating that the M. K. T., on whose line all the telegraphers struck Aug.
1, are sending out offers to operators throughout the country stating that difficulties between the road and employees had been satisfactorily settled.
"The Telegrapher" magazine nails down this statement as a lie. The telegraphers have long been dissatisfied and negotiations were carried on with the officials of the road concerning a raise in salary, but no settlement could be reached, and the matter was being continually delayed by the management. Meanwhile the road has been trying to get strike-breakers from outside but with ill success.
Several of the imported men have been out with large sums almost as soon as employed. About fifteen graduates of the local school of telegraphers were assigned to duty on a neighboring road recently, but it is very probable that they were turned over to the M. K. & T.

WANT BIG MEN FOR THE TEAM

HIGH SCHOOL HAS MATERIAL IF IT WILL COME OUT.

SCRIMMAGE WORK STARTED

And Practice is Held at Grant School
Every Night—Football
Gossip.

Candidates for the Janesville high school football team commenced their scrimmages and regular football practice on the grounds of the Grant school, on Pleasant street, this week.
Last week was devoted entirely to the slides and no hard work was given the players. About sixteen candidates for positions have shown up in practice thus far and many more are needed. A. H. Bartlett, who is coaching the team, says that there is much good material in the high school and hopes that some of the big fellows, especially, will come out. There are several holes to be filled, the two tackles being the most important. While there have been a few spectators on the slide lines it is to be desired that more will take an interest in the game and visit the grounds when the work is in progress. Their presence always lends encouragement to the players and is a direct asset in building up the team. Whitewater normal wanted a game this Saturday but it was thought advisable not to schedule a contest until the team was in better shape. Some team will probably be taken on for next week Saturday.

Prospects for a good Wisconsin university football team are daily growing brighter. Earlier in the season it was feared that the team would be greatly weakened this year on account of the inability of Graduate Manager Kilpatrick to secure a good man for quarterback. These fears have now been overcome as plenty of candidates are in the field. Schrieber, Jones and Kuestead are trying for positions and all three are showing up remarkably well. Melner, the new candidate for quarter, is expected in Madison the latter part of this week. He will be immediately taken into camp at Lakeside where practice is being held. It appears that Jones is receiving the most attention of the coaches. He played quarter on the championship freshman team last year. Captain Bush is detained at his home in Racine on account of illness and will not be at practice until the latter part of this week. All the new men are showing up well. Earl Driver will again have charge of the first year team this year. He is preparing a schedule and already has dates with the Wisconsin academy, October 8 and with the Platteville normal on November 12. Arrangements are under way to have the University of Chicago and the University of Wisconsin freshmen play their game on the morning of Thanksgiving at Chicago, as a forerunner to the big contest in the afternoon.

The schedules of the western university teams have been practically completed. Michigan will meet Chicago and Wisconsin but will not play Northwestern and Minnesota, both of which latter teams promise to be exceptionally strong this year. Chicago will not meet Minnesota but will play the others of the "Big Four." Beloit will meet Northwestern and Wisconsin. The schedule for the two states of Wisconsin teams are as follows:

WISCONSIN
Oct. 8—Marquette college of Milwaukee at Madison.
Oct. 15—Notre Dame at Milwaukee.
Oct. 22—Drake at Madison.
Oct. 29—Michigan at Madison.
Nov. 5—Beloit at Madison.
Nov. 12—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
Nov. 12—Minnesota at Minneapolis.
Nov. 24—Thanksgiving day—University of Chicago at Chicago.

BELOIT
Sept. 23—Purdue at Lafayette.
Oct. 8—Platteville (Wis.) normal at Beloit.
Oct. 15—Northwestern university
at Evanston.

(Naperville, Ill.) at Beloit.
Oct. 29—Lawrence university (Appleton, Wis.) at Beloit.

Nov. 19—Knox at Galesburg.

Merrill Advocate: Bob La Follette claims he is strong with the people.
Possibly he is; but it remains to be seen whether he is stronger than republican principles. Once the decision is rendered by the supreme court, and given in favor of Cook, we shall see if there will not be more Roosevelt-Cook republican clubs than Roosevelt-La Follette clubs. There will be a tremendous change in the point of view for those who are halting at the political crossway, once the supreme court decision is made.

NO UNION FOR STENOGRAPHERS

Chicago Man Met Poor Success in One of the Office Buildings in This City.

Recently there was in the city a gentleman from Chicago who expressed his opinion of Janesville girls, which to say the least was not at all complimentary. "This city is famous for the number of pretty young ladies who reside here, but I am doing all in my power to spoil that fame. He came here, with the expectation of organizing a typewriters and stenographers' labor union.
His first move was to interview some of the typewriters in one of the office buildings. The eight hour a day argument was invalid, for none worked longer than that, none worked under the piece work regulation, so another half hour of palaver could not be used profitably; and when his final plan for protection against unmerciful employers was advanced he was advised to go to his wives of the business. The "pretty typewriter girls" said they had no fault to find with their treatment. He now thinks that a matrimonial union proposition would have taken better than the labor union idea. The man had no connection with the local men interested in the advance of organized labor.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workman.

Factory Inspector Kelly, of Toronto, Canada, is advocating an amendment to the law raising the limit to which girls can be employed in factories from fourteen to sixteen years of age.

The International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen has reported the recommendation in favor of the passage of state laws and city ordinances requiring stationary firemen to be licensed.

The members of Company I, Grass Valley, Colo., have expressed a desire to leave the National Guard of that state. They are in sympathy with the striking miners, and fear they may be called out against them.

The Holyoke (Mass.) carpenters' strike, begun May 1, has been called off. About 225 men struck. The wages lost amounted to $30,000 and the city lost $150,000 in prospective buildings which are indefinitely postponed.

Journeyman plumbers of Youngstown, O., have adopted a new method in fighting the Master Plumbers' Association in the strike which is now on. The union has decided to embark in the plumbing business, and each member is a member of the firm.

The ways and means committee of the Detroit (Mich.) Common council has recommended that the wages of union brick pavers employed by the city be raised from $2.25 to $3.20, in accordance with the resolution by the city, authorizing the employment of union labor.

A fight to obtain union labels in Springfield, Mo., has resulted in the organization of new unions of laundry workers and railway clerks, and the organizers report that union workmen and women receive far more consideration from employers than the non-union employees.

Superior Telegram: A Pacific paper says that the burglars' union is complaining of a lock-out. Out on the coast they seem inclined to joke these days. The crime crop must be better than usual.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes a certain dark character. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it.
The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness.
Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, investigated a rabbit with a skin disease, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

THE TOBACCO CROP NEARLY ALL IN SHED

Outlook for a Good Crop is at Present Very Bright—Harvest of Early Crop Now Over.

The buying of the new leaf crop in the field is still proceeding, though somewhat less rapidly than a few weeks ago. Still it is understood that more than two thousand acres have been contracted for, and buyers are still quietly increasing their holdings, while they carefully watch the harvesting of the crop to see that no undue tobacco is cut and that proper care is taken in the handling. It is stated that most of the desirable tobacco in the Edgerton section has been sold, the price averaging ten cents a pound. The weather has been far from favorable, being too cold for the rapid maturing of the crop, and there is a large amount of late tobacco that, without an exceptionally warm fall, will scarcely reach the sheds. Comparatively little damage has been done by hail. The crop, however, has had other troubles to contend with. The recent heavy winds have done a vast amount of damage to the standing crop while the cool summer has delayed the growth and maturing of the tobacco, to such an extent that without an unusually warm fall the crop will surely fall far below the average. Dealers report a fair inquiry for old stock and one large sale of 1903 crop the price not being given. Shipments out of storage from Edgerton for the week did not exceed 300 cases.

NEW YORK.
In spite of the great shrinkage in acreage, the new crop will not be as short as was supposed. In the southern sections of the state it has been found necessary to run up new sheds rapidly owing to the heavy expected yield per acre. A considerable proportion of the crop has been already cut, and the tobacco is described as of a fine quality and good growth, in fact, the best crop in many years. A few sales of the 1903 crop have been made at an average price of 10 cents per pound.

FLORIDA.
Reports from growers are optimistic. The recent rains have brought about a great improvement in the situation, and hopes are high for the shade grown crop. In parts the harvest will be somewhat delayed owing to the fact that the plants were making slow progress and that they plowed them under. However, it is calculated that a more uniform crop will thus be obtained.

NEW ENGLAND.
A pleasing unanimity characterizes the descriptions of the 1904 crop, whether they come from the grower or the packer. "The best on record," is the phrase almost invariably used as regards both quantity and quality. To grow more in particular, the leaf is described as broad and fine, and of unusually good color. About half the crop has not been housed, and judging from present indications, the harvest should be completed early this month. Of late the weather has been particularly favorable to rapid ripening, so that even the latest planted tobacco is now about ready for cutting. The chief trouble now is lack of barn and shed space, and it is feared that some of the newly cut tobacco may have been too closely crowded for the best cure. However, up to the present time, the weather has been so suitable for good curing, that farmers are not worrying over the hanging tobacco. It is not expected that there will be many sales in the field this year, as growers feel that they have the upper hand, and are confident that if there are not in too much of a hurry, they will ultimately receive from 20 to 25 cents per pound in the bundle.

BOGUS CHECK PAYS FOR SHOES

Indianapolis, Man Under Arrest on Forgery Charge.

Shelbyville, Ind., Sept. 13.—J. H. Murry, who claims Indianapolis as his place of residence, is in jail here on a charge of forgery. He came here about nine weeks ago to work for Hiram Peters, a cement contractor. Murry, it is alleged, forged Peters' name to five checks, each for $25, and succeeded in cashing them all. At the Stevens Shoe company Murry purchased a pair of $2 shoes, giving a $25 check in payment and receiving $23 in change in return. Later Murry was arrested just as he was boarding an interurban car for Indianapolis. When searched the shoes and $123.55 in cash were found on his person.

He worked in the Santa Fe shops at La Junta about two months, it is said, going under the name of I. O. White. Little credence is placed in his confession, in which he implicated several miners' union officials.

GOOD SPORT FOR WOMEN.

Woodchuck Shooting Recommended as a Beneficial Outdoor Exercise.

It is acknowledged by all progressive men that as a means of self-protection every woman should be capable of handling and shooting a rifle or pistol, as well as know how to swim, says a physician in Fishing and Shooting. She requires as much oxygen as the man. Yet, to see her run or throw a stone is convincing that she is not anatomically or physically made for foot or horse racing or mountain climbing.

The wealthy, athletic, up-to-date young woman has her golf, automobile, etc. She would do well to add "chuck shooting" to her amusements, but those who do are in the minority. We have the teacher, stenographer, shop and factory girl closely confined many hours every day. As a physician of 50 years experience, I can but note their pale lips and atrophied muscles and long to advise them.

Instead of spending their vacation at Saratoga or some fashionable seaside or mountain resort, where they will see what is generally termed society, only to return to their duties unrefreshed, money gone and longing for the fleshpots of Egypt, let me advise our vacationists to expend a few dollars for a suit of stout material of unobtrusive color, short skirt, a small soft felt hat and tramping boots. Ten dollars will buy a rifle and ammunition, or five dollars a fishing outfit. A journey of a few hours will take her into the country, four or five dollars a week will procure substantial board. The rifle or rod will be an excuse or object for an early morning tramp. If a "chuck" tail or fish is not added to her trophies, she has seen nature at its loveliest, its mounts and hills, its groves and templed hills, and with the pure air has breathed in a deeper love for God and all His works. Like all true sportsmen she will not wantonly kill or cause to suffer any harmless thing He has created. The birds and squirrels will go unharmed, but she will learn much of their home life, as she rests under a hickory tree and watches their gambols.

Do not let her think she is alone in her consideration for the little things. Many of our best sportsmen are men of refinement and know the idiosyncrasies of the ant as well as the habits of the grizzly. The wily "chuck" will take him to the hills and fields and, after he has stalked them from early morn until dark, he will feel that he has had variety enough to call it game.

It is true, many prefer the horse and yacht, or the automobile and the coroner, while others the humble woodchuck.

Mr. Hearst failed to capture the democratic nomination, but he is getting his revenge by paying more attention in his papers to Tom Watson than he is to Judge Parker, and the fact is very apparent that by this course he is causing a good deal of nervousness on the part of some of the democratic leaders.

DATE AND FIG INDUSTRIES.

New Tropical Importations That Thrive and Prove Successful in California.

If the good work that has been prosecuted in California and Arizona during the past few years in cultivating figs and dates continues, these now imported tropical fruits will become as cheap and as common as the California prune and raisin. According to reliable authorities, the California crop of Smyrna figs during 1903 amounted to 130,000 pounds. Of course, 65 tons of dried fruit is a mere bagatelle compared with the market in this country, but it must be remembered that it is only within the past five years that the secret of the pollination of the fig, which fills the fruit with the characteristic minute seeds and develops its delicate flavor, was wrested from nature by the government's experts. The pollination is accomplished by a tiny insect, that had to be imported from the shores of the Mediterranean, and, what is still more interesting, this insect is particularly fastidious, and refuses to employ its talents for the benefit of man unless fed on Capri, or wild figs. Accordingly, wild figs, which are worthless for table purposes, had to be imported, and now one of the expenses of fig cultivation is the distribution of the Capri figs throughout the orchards for the benefit of this exacting little insect.

Down in Arizona, where the experimentalists have been struggling with the date palm question for some years past, most gratifying success has been achieved. While a large number of the suckers, brought at great expense and trouble from Algiers and other African date districts, as well as from Arabia, have died, the station now has some 422 trees started, some 60 trees in blossom and at least four varieties in fruit. The thoroughness of the world search for promising varieties of dates will be appreciated when it is stated that specimens of 68 varieties are now growing at the Arizona experiment station grounds.

New Cure for Consumption.

A novel cure for consumption has recently been discovered by Dr. Canu, 43 Rue Fontenelle, Rouen, France. The patient is first placed upon the operating table, where the usual saline solutions are injected. Afterwards he is seated upon an insulated table and electricity passed through him for some minutes by attaching poles to metallic plates which had been fastened to his breast and back. During this time sparks can be drawn from any part of his body. This finished, the patient inserts the small end of a conical-shaped tube in his mouth. Into this tube is put a little broom previously dipped into the necessary medicaments for the healing of the lungs or whatever organism is attacked, and through it the man's body, and an X-ray globe in the rear goes the electric current, carrying with it the medicinal "iron" from the broom.

BILLIONS OVER BARS EACH YEAR

PROHIBITION CANDIDATE TELLS OF LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

HIS ISSUE IS GREATEST

Financially and Morally Before the People—W. H. Clark's Forceful Speech.

"The governor of this state maintains that the people of Wisconsin are paying each year forty-seven millions of dollars into the coffers of the railroad companies, but even he does not claim that all of this money should remain in the pockets of the people. When I tell you that $50,000,000 are being paid over the bars of this state every year every cent of which is taking food from the mouths of children, clothes and other comforts from the family, financially, you must concede that our issue is greater than any other before the people for their suffrages. Do you know what the nation is spending each year for liquor? The amount aggregates the enormous sum of $1,400,000,000. Think of it! If I had the amount in dollar bills and employed an expert to count them, working 12 hours a day and counting one bill a second, he would labor from 47 to 48 years. In silver, laying each coin so that it would touch the next one, a single mile might be stretched around and through the earth. With this money going over bars do you wonder that we sometimes have hard times? Not only is it a waste, but it is also an indirect expense. Three-fourths of the business of the criminal courts arise from it. Nearly fifty per cent of the inmates of asylums and jails and penitentiaries owe their condition to strong drink, and the taxpayers bear the burden."

All Partners in Traffic
W. H. Clark, the prohibition candidate for governor, spoke to an audience of about 150 in the Court-house park last evening. He said that he asked for no man's vote, only urged each to listen to the facts which each party had to present and then follow the dictates of his own conscience. The mass of voters were honest, he believed. The candidates for office on other party tickets were good men. They might be mistaken. Uncle Sam's revenue from the liquor business was $40,000,000 a year. By exacting this revenue the people were made partners in the business. Some of them wished to get out of this partnership.

Talks of Hurley
The speaker devoted considerable attention to Hurley. The northern town, he said, was starving a few years ago because the men were out of work and had traded the food they had for liquor. He spoke of the conditions obtaining there now and of the trial of the sheriff and district attorney of Iron county for not fulfilling their duties. Gov. La Follette, he said, need not go away from Madison to find the same neglect of duty. The sheriff and district attorney of Dane county had connived in lawlessness just the same as those in Iron county, though in a lesser degree perhaps. He was not sure but that if he should investigate he would find the same conditions obtaining in Janesville.

TAYLOR & LOWELL GOING TO BUILD?

Rumor That Northwestern Road Has Donated Site for New Factory.

It is reported on creditable authority that the Taylor & Lowell Mfg. Co. is soon to embark upon new branches of business and erect a large and commodious factory to accommodate the same. The Northwestern Railroad Co. with characteristic generosity has offered this concern a site and it will probably be accepted. Mr. Taylor, when interviewed this afternoon, stated that matters had not been definitely decided upon as yet and contingencies might arise which would prevent the fruition of present plans. He, therefore, refused to discuss the matter.

GONE TO THEIR FINAL REWARD

READY TO MAKE CEMENT BRICK

SILICA BRICK & STONE CO. HAS INCORPORATED.

A VERY MUCH LARGER PLANT

Will Be Built in Janesville Than at First Proposed—On Account of Patent Rights Secured.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state at Madison today for the organization of the Silica Brick & Stone company of Milwaukee with a capital of $15,000. The new company is now located in the lower city just east of the Janesville Cement Post factory in the sand hills near the foot of South Main street. The incorporators of the company are all Milwaukee gentlemen, as follows: Walter B. Potter, Samuel Wallwick, and Aaron H. Spoor.

Will Enlarge Plant
It is the purpose of the new company to make a superior article of cement brick and stone. They have recently purchased the patent right to manufacture a cement stone block in Wisconsin at a great expense. The company have already put up their buildings and are at work on their product, but an enlargement of the plant will be necessary before the manufacture of the cement blocks is commenced.

Stockholders Pleased
It is proposed by the company to erect a building with about three times the capacity of the present structure and work will be commenced at once. The incorporators of the new company were in the city a few days ago and expressed themselves as being very much pleased with the outlook for the new factory in Janesville.

SOCIETY FOR BLIND IN BIG WRANGLE

Resignation of Alice Fellows as Treasurer, Called For, and Society Seeks To Expel Suggester.

Confusion and dissension reign in the ranks of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Society for Promoting the Education and Welfare of the Blind. A petition has been circulated among the members in Milwaukee asking that the offices of secretary and treasurer, both of which are now held by Miss Alice Burnham Fellows, who formerly taught in the State School for the Blind in this city, be separated. Dr. Jennie Morrison, a member of the board, has demanded that the financial matters of the society be conducted in a more business like manner. Yesterday, as a climax to the proceedings, Mr. Spencer, head of the deaf schools, moved that Dr. Morrison's membership be canceled for non-payment of dues and Miss Fellows seconded the motion. Dr. Morrison protested. She also suggested that she doubted if any action taken at the meeting would be legal, inasmuch as Miss Fellows had acknowledged at the beginning of the meeting that C. R. Showalter, a member of the board, had not been notified of the meeting. Dr. Morrison claimed that at a meeting on April 12 the board had voted that the funds should be placed in the Marshall & Hilsley bank, whereas no such deposit had been made. Miss Fellows said that the money had been deposited in her own name. Miss Fellows is conducting a free school for the blind in the fourth school district, Milwaukee, and it opened yesterday with four pupils, though no official action calling for the opening of the institution had been taken by the board. President Jeremiah Quinn of the society offered his resignation as a member and it was declined.

HOW TO MAKE SHEEP PAY.

The ewes should be two years old before bred.

Lambs sell more per pound and cost less to produce than mutton.

Sheep have excellent digestion and hence they utilize food to the fullest degree.

If sheep are not kept constantly in good condition the quality of the wool is affected.

Frequent changes of pasture makes fat sheep. It will not pay to rear a poor sheep for market.

Sheep should always be fat when marketed. Fat is produced cheaper than lean, hence there is more profit.

There are very few animals that are as dainty and choicest as their food as sheep.

Under present conditions of sheep raising the farmer cannot afford to keep sheep for any one object.

If a sheep is not making a good growth, raising a lamb or two into market condition, it is not profitable to the owner.

With sheep a change of pasture will be found an advantage when the flock can be put in a better place.

When a man has improved his flock, until he can sell his poorest sheep at remunerative prices, he can then afford the best.

To make sheep raising profitable young, uniformly well-wooled sheep to grow heavy fleeces of merchantable wool are needed.—Farmers' Voice.

BLIND INSTITUTE TO BEGIN WORK

SCHOOL OPENS TOMORROW WITH ONE HUNDRED STUDENTS.

BASKET WEAVING INTRODUCED

Three New and Twelve Old Instructors—Same Officers as Last Year—Milwaukee Work Shop.

Tomorrow is the opening day for the State School for the Blind. The registration so far is about the same as last year and the number in attendance is expected to be about one hundred, as usual. There are three new teachers and a new department has been created.

Basket Weaving
A new work shop for weaving baskets has been established by the state board of control in Milwaukee, in conformity with the law to that effect passed by the legislature of the state. The work shop employs only blind adults who are skilled in the art of basket weaving. The new department in the institution is for the purpose of training the young students in order that they may, when they graduate from here, be able to earn a living in the Milwaukee shop if desired. Joseph Sleh, a professional basket weaver from Milwaukee, will have charge of this department. The scholars will make baby-carriage baskets, clothes-baskets, clothes-hampers and all kinds of fancy baskets.

Manual Training Department
Basket weaving will be taught in the manual training department which has been enlarged and perfected this year. This department was established but a year ago. Though the school has thus been strengthened along this line it has not been weakened in the least along any other lines.

New Instructors
There are three new instructors this year: Miss Phoebe C. Black, cooking; Joseph Sleh, basket weaving; and Spencer Reese, mathematics. Mr. Reese is an Evansville boy and a graduate of Whitewater normal. The other teachers are Laura Ingleson, piano; R. J. Harvey, piano tuning; Joanna B. Jones, piano and pipe organ; H. G. Arnold, weaving; Ida Turner, physical culture; Helen Patten, primary; Augusta Watson, intermediate and geography; Elmer Parks, sewing and knitting; Lavonia Brooks, history and literature; Frank Froehlich, manual training; Elsie Korer, vocal music, and Elizabeth McGrath, kindergarten.

The officers of the institution are: Superintendent and Steward, C. R. Showalter; matron, Miss Curtis; and assistant steward, Miss Francis Ryan.

VIOLATE POSTAL LAWS BY "DIAMOND LOTTERY"

Treasurer of Preferred Mercantile Company of Boston is Placed Under Arrest by Federal Officers.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 13.—Guy C. Stillings, treasurer of the Preferred Mercantile company of this city, has been arrested on a charge of conducting a "diamond lottery" business in violation of the postal laws. The company was formerly located in Kansas City. In five months it is said that $1,655,000 in contracts was written by the concern, which has forty branch offices in many of the large cities.

The business has been under the surveillance of the postoffice authorities for a long time. Last March they secured a fraud order against the company and although since that time its mail has been held up the business has not ceased.

Guy C. Stillings is treasurer and secretary and George B. Stillings president. President Stillings is said to be in the west. Treasurer Stillings, before Commissioner Fiske, pleaded not guilty. The case was continued for one week, the defendant being held in $2,000.

Firemen Attack Chief.

At a fire in Erfurt, Germany, the members of the fire brigade quarreled with the chief, and instead of attending to their duties belabored him with a hose until he was senseless. Meanwhile, the fire had taken such a hold that before it was got under control several houses were burnt to the ground.

HIS CAREER WAS A ROMANTIC ONE

John Thompson Hilton, Whose Fortune May Come to Local Relatives, Disowned by Family.

The newspaper advertisement appearing in a Boston paper which furnished the first inkling to Gustav Hilton that he might be an heir of the Nevada millionaire read as follows: Wanted—Information leading to the discovery of the heirs of John Thompson Hilton, deceased, of Virginia City, Nev., whose estate, estimated in value at $20,000,000, is not distributed. Heirs are believed to reside in New England.

The story of John Thompson Hilton, what is known of it, reads like a romance. In his youth he quarreled with his family in Maine, was disowned, and went to seek his fortune in the west. No one of his relatives ever heard of him afterwards and not until three years after his death was it learned that he had built up a great fortune in Nevada. In addition to the names of children of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Hilton, given in yesterday's paper, there are: M. E. Hilton of Janesville, E. B. Hilton of Denver, H. W. Hilton of Monroe, and Mrs. Millie Garrett of Hawarden, Ia.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Rochester James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1904, by L. Appleton &amp; Co., New York.

Anne was glad to have the scene over. The emotions of the last few moments had been almost too much for her. As Josette brought her hat and wrap she turned to Grafton, extending her hand.

"Farewell, monsieur!" she said. "This is not good-bye, Mademoiselle de Rohan!" cried Grafton, seizing her hand. "I shall see you again!"

"I shall always be glad to see you, monsieur," she answered simply, biting her lip to control his quivering. "Come, Monsieur de Vitre."

"My friend," said de Vitre, ere he followed her from the room, "have no anxiety. I will see that some one comes to you at once."

"But Mademoiselle de Rohan?" cried Grafton.

"I will take care of her, monsieur," returned the Frenchman meaningly. "Remember, 'tis my right."

In one sense de Vitre was as good as his word, for the room was soon filled with English officers, who welcomed Grafton as one risen from the dead. They had given him over for lost at last, not having heard from him, and he had the pleasure later on of reading his own obituary in the general orders commending his conduct on the debarcation of the troops, which had been published by the vice admiral.

Several days passed without his seeing or hearing anything from Anne de Rohan in spite of his inquiries, days filled with the most consuming anxiety. Yet he had endeavored to be patient, having set himself resolutely to get well, and had made much progress in recovering from his wounds. He realized that he could not afford to lose any time in the fight for Anne. On the fourth day a note was put into his hand:

"Philip, my Philip," it read, "my knight, my love, I am calling you so for the last time. When you read this, I shall be far down the river on board a ship for France. With the first of the refugees I was permitted to go, and forgive me, my own—I could not trust myself to see you again. I will not deny—indeed, how can I?—that I have loved you with a love that more than matches your own. Yet you wear one woman's picture over your heart, dear, and I humiliate myself by sending you this counterfeit presentment of another. Alas, 'tis all of me that you may ever have! Look upon it, monsieur as you have loved me in spite of the other and then break it, and—forget me." Farewell!

In a little diamond-studded, heart-shaped locket, which he had often seen on her breast, there was a cunning miniature of the woman he loved. He pressed it to his lips and then slipped it and the letter in a pocket near his heart. Then, with the assistance of the English sailor who had been detailed to wait upon him, he made ready to leave.

He looked long and earnestly about the room, hallowed by their meeting, filled with blessed associations of his presence, ere he crossed the threshold, for he did not intend to return.

He was informed by Gen. Townsend, then in the patched-up Chateau St. Louis, when he reported to him, that three days since, the first shipload of fugitives who had chosen to leave Canada rather than remain under the rule of the English, had departed. Among them was Mademoiselle de Rohan and her servants.

"Who commanded the cartel?" asked Grafton.

"A Canadian officer, who was to be exchanged in Europe."

"And his name, Gen. Townsend?"

"Lieut. Denis de Vitre, he is called. I believe," answered the young English general, looking curiously at him. "By the way, I have a paper for you. You are gazetted to the command of the frigate Maldstone, and you are to carry dispatches to Sir Edward Hawke. Vice Admiral Saunders also recommends you to be given command of the first ship of the line vacant, for your distinguished services here. I congratulate you, captain," added the general, handing him the paper.

"When does the Maldstone sail, sir?"

"As soon as you are able to take her, I believe. She has been provisioned for her voyage and lies in the basin. She will be the first of the English ships to get to sea. Another fast frigate will be sent to Europe with dispatches, but Admiral Saunders thinks it is of the utmost importance that Hawke, who is blockading Brest, as you know, should be informed of the fall of Quebec; and you are to tell him that Saunders will join him at the earliest possible date, and with the combined fleets they may have a chance to crush the French under Cornwallis. I suppose you will start in a day or two?"

"I start now, at once, general."

"But your wound?"

"Is nothing any longer. A breath of sea air will set me up again. By the way, where was the cartel, commanded by Monsieur de Vitre, bound for?"

"For Brest. He is to be exchanged there and the refugees landed."

"Ah! And his ship, general? Was it a speedy one, do you know?"

"It was the fastest of the fleet. I wish you had seen her, captain."

"The vice admiral told me that he had chosen the fastest ship in the fleet for you, so you may have a chance of overhauling her, if you care to, although they have three days' start. Well, I wish you bon voyage, captain."

You will, of course, report to Vice Admiral Saunders before you leave. Good-bye."

"I wonder what he's up to?" thought the general, as Grafton saluted, turned on his heel, and hurriedly left the room.

CHAPTER XX.

WET SHEETS AND FLOWING SEAS.

GRAY sky and an angry sea. A solitary ship in the waste of waters, staggering along in a roaring gale from the west; every rag of canvas that could safely be spread—ay, and even more—urging her forward before the fierce wind; driving her madly through the tossing waves. A lonely, restless man upon her deck passing the long weary hours on the forecastle looking eagerly ahead, ever ahead; turning like a devotee his face to the east, pointing his vessel toward the rising sun; though driven aside by the happenings of the sea, returning to his goal with the accuracy and the persistency with which the polar needle swings toward its star.

Some 200 leagues ahead of the frigate, with the man on the knight-heads peering fruitlessly across the dark expanse of tossing water, another vessel, driven in like manner, steadily pursued its course for the same destination. As if conscious of the unwearied, indomitable pursuit, she, too, made her way onward madly, recklessly, crossing the great deep.

Skill and seamanship of the highest type were at her service as well. A willingness to drive was there in almost as great a measure, for this ship was homeward bound. When she dropped anchor in the waters of France, those aboard of her, now held prisoner by the heavy-linked chain of honor, would be free.

And a woman hung over the quarter of the second ship listening indifferently to words of sweetness, responding not at all to passionate pleadings that fell upon her ear; a woman, turning her eyes back toward the west, gazing upon the setting sun that had carried down to darkness with it her maiden heart; a woman marking the long white wake of the ship, her sadness growing greater, her regret deepening, deepening with each swiftly passing league.

And yet the lonely woman on the quarter-deck with the infrequent sunlight losing itself in her midnight hair, with her violet eyes staring backward, backward, backward, from out a pale face whose whiteness matched the foaming wave, was drawing on as surely and irresistibly as the loadstone the needle, the eager man upon the other ship.

"I think there can be no doubt of our observations, captain. You see we have had a double check on them by working them out independently."

"Yes, we have made no mistake, I am sure, and yet there are always happenings for which allowance must be made; things that no mind, no instrument, can check on the sea."

"True, sir; but it has all been plain sailing so far, and the way you have watched and handled this frigate has been a marvel to me, and I have sailed in many ships."

"Thank you. But I have an object in it all."

"Of course, the dispatches to Sir Edward Hawke."

"Yes, that is it," he answered, gratefully for his lieutenant's tact. "And I mean to see her once more, by heaven, if I have to go into Brest to do it!"

"All right, sir, I'm with you in anything. And if I know our bulwarks better, they'd like nothing better than a dash at a Frenchman, for a ship, a woman, or a—"

"That will do, Hatfield," remarked Grafton, with a slight touch of sternness. "I hardly contemplate calling upon the men for any cutting-out expedition in this emergency, though I may want your help, my friend."

The friendship began years since between the two men had ripened into intimacy—although Hatfield was much the junior in years as well as rank to Grafton—and the footing between them when not on formal service was one of hearty affection and familiar intimacy. This was an unusual relationship between the captain and first lieutenant of a frigate, yet the younger man never presumed upon it, and the older man never condescended on account of it, and no mischance had arisen.

"And you shall have it, Capt. Grafton," replied the younger man, impulsively. "Might I, without presumption, ask the lady's name?"

"De Rohan," answered Grafton. "The Countess de Rohan, the granddaughter of the Marquis de Chabot."

"Thank you, I knew you would, and we will succeed or die, my friend," responded Grafton impetuously, without considering that the prospect of death could not be so inviting to his friend as it was to himself in case of failure. But Hatfield was game.

"Well," he said, stretching out his hand, "here's by hand-on it. Success to our enterprise!"

"That's good," replied Grafton, immensely relieved. "I was sure I could depend upon you."

"Now tell me how you propose to get into the castle if she's there."

"I think she will surely be there. De Vitre is a thorough sailor. I'll say that for him, and a thorough gentleman, too. He picked out the fastest ship in the basin. You know the French build better ships than we do. He has probably driven her as hard as we have and he had several days' start of us. His orders take him to Brest, and 'tis most natural that he should take her to the Chateau de Josselin, which is her grandfather's castle. There is an oriel window in the keep tower overlooking the sea, and there is a practicable way of gaining the balcony surrounding it."

"And how?" came floating down from their heads.

"Where away?" cried Hatfield promptly.

"Broad off the weather bow, sir."

"That ought to be Ushant," remarked Grafton.

"Yes, and just where we thought it would be, off yonder."

"Hold on as we are, Hatfield. We will soon raise it from the deck. We must be making all of ten knots in this rippling breeze. Do you think she could stand the maintopgallant sail?"

"Hardly," answered Hatfield, throwing a glance aloft. "Well, perhaps Rohan, in whose castle I was confined five years ago. I met her then as a little girl, and as luck, nay, Providence might, but what would be the use of it, captain? We'll be there quickly enough, anyway."

"Perhaps you are right. But we ought to have seen some of Sir Edward's fleet before this. I don't understand it. Aloft, there!"

"Sir?"

"Do you see any sails to leeward?"

"No, sir."

"Or anywhere?"

"No, sir."

"Keep a bright lookout for them."

"Ay, ay, sir."

"Hold! hardly be cruising so far off-shore as this, would he?" said Hatfield. "You know when he blockades he does it closely. They say he's been holding Brest so tightly closed all summer that a bird could not fly in or out of the harbor without being noticed."

"Yes, that's his way. I don't know whether he will be there or not now, though, since it's so late in the season. But let me tell you, Hatfield, he's done an unprecedented thing in sealing up the Brest fleet so long. I think it was old Cloudesley Shovel who said that a man was a fool and ought to be broke if he kept his ships out in the Bay of Biscay after September, and here it is the middle of November, and that war brig we spoke last week said that he was still there when she left, and looking as if he were going to stay there all winter, too."

"Yes, that's like him."

"Like him! I should say so; I was a rector on the Devonshire when he knocked LeBlondiere's squadron into a cocked hat, and I've cruised with him since; he was an old friend of my father's before he died, used to stop at our house when he came to Boston, while he was on the West India station. In fact, I began my sea service with him. I never saw such a man. He's as swift as a frigate bird, and when he strikes he hits like a storm. He never lets go either, and such a fighter! He's well named Hawke, I think."

"Ay, but I very much doubt our running across him this morning," exclaimed Hatfield. "We should have seen a frigate surely by this time if he were there. You see, this westerly gale has been blowing for three days, or maybe longer, and he'll find it difficult to keep his position with such a heavy fleet on a lee-shore. Besides, the wind keeps the French tight in the harbor. He may have run over to Plymouth, or Torbay, ready to dash out again when the wind shifts."

"And perhaps give the French a chance to slip out, too. I'll wager a pound to a penny he's been praying they would try it all summer long."

The frigate, on the quarter-deck of which the two men had been speaking, had been moving rapidly through the water and they were much nearer the coast now. Indeed, the blink of the land—the dim blue haze upon the horizon which tells of voyages ended and havens near, and sometimes of wreck and disaster when the storm gods are out—could be seen now from the deck, and the stern cliffs of Ushant were rising higher with every passing moment.

Save for the land before and to the north of them the horizon was clear. There was not a single ship in sight. It was evident that Sir Edward, and his blockading fleet had gone away.

"What'll you do now?" asked Hatfield.

"Well, we'll run in a little farther, I think," continued Grafton. "We can at least see if the French are still in port. Perhaps we can find out what they are about to do. Then we'll bear up for Torbay, try to overhaul the fleet, and deliver these dispatches and the news."

"And Mademoiselle de Rohan?"

"As to her, later, I am afraid."

"You won't try for it now, then?"

"I think not, I must deliver these dispatches first of all."

"I never give up anything, Hatfield," answered Grafton resolutely. "And I'd as soon give up life as Anne de Rohan."

"You won't try for it now, then?"

"I think not, I must deliver these dispatches first of all."

"I never give up anything, Hatfield," answered Grafton resolutely. "And I'd as soon give up life as Anne de Rohan."

Active World of Baseball

James McGinley, New England Star, Signed by Kid Nichols—Jack Warner, New York Nationals—Timely Talk of the Game.

The major leagues have obtained some unusually able players from the minor and college teams this season. In fact, there has seldom been a period in baseball history when promising young men have had such good chances to rise in diamond affairs as at present. James McGinley, a pitcher of the Haverhill (Mass.) club, is the latest "find" among the minors. Charley Nichols, manager of the St. Louis Nationals, has signed McGinley and has great hopes for the New Englander's future in fast company.

Nichols recently took the trouble to visit Haverhill to see McGinley perform.

McGinley pitched a game while Nichols

ing one of his winning streaks he was victor in sixteen consecutive games.

Several major league managers have been watching McGinley for some time. The Philadelphia Nationals made strong efforts to secure him, but Nichols was too quick for the Quaker-town officials.

McGinley, according to critics who have seen him twirl, is next to Mike Lynch of Brown university, recently secured by Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, the greatest "find" of the year.

A member of the New York Nationals who has performed yeoman service this season in the Giants' successful contest for the pennant is Jack Warner, the able catcher.

Jack is catching the best game of his long career this season and has also increased his reputation as a "pinch" hitter. He has pulled many games out of the fire with a timely swing.

In one of the games early in the season with Brooklyn New York was one run behind in the tenth inning. Warner came to the bat, with one man, Devlin, on second and two men out. Jack had two strikes called on him and then with a snappy swing banged the spheroid into the right field bleachers for a home run, winning the game then and there. As Jack crossed the plate he was mobbed by a crowd of 15,000 joyful people and carried to the clubhouse.

A Cincinnati critic says one would imagine that baseball players, living in an atmosphere of sport, would be proficient in other lines of outdoor athletics, and the majority of baseball players know little or nothing of sport

PLEADS GUILTY TO KILLING GIRL

Fred Strube Admits He Murdered Alice Henninger While in Jealous Rage.

HAD REFUSED TO BE HIS BRIDE

Young Woman Declined to Become the Wife of Man Who Bought Her and Enraged Swain Ends Her Life With a Buggy Wrench.

Havanna, Ill., Sept. 13.—The throngs who gathered here Monday expecting to hear what promised to be one of the most sensational murder trials in the history of Illinois were disappointed.

Fred Strube entered a plea of guilty in the circuit court shortly after 2 o'clock to the murder of Alice Henninger of Mason City and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

No one, aside from the attorneys, the defendant and his father, and the relatives of the dead girl, knew of the arrangements prior to the hour for convening court, and in consequence the plea of guilty came as a great surprise.

Murderer Hangs His Head.

Accompanied by a deputy sheriff on either side, Strube followed his father into the court room. He was compelled to run the gantlet of hundreds of curious eyes, the crowd being composed of his former neighbors and friends. He walked with bowed head and did not raise his eyes at any time until the court passed sentence upon him. As Judge Higbee opened court and throughout the proceedings there was scarcely a whisper to be heard in the room.

Guilty of Shocking Crime.
Strube's crime was one of the most shocking in the annals of crime in Illinois.

On Saturday night, Nov. 14, 1903, a box social was given at the Diefenbacher school near the Strube and Henninger houses. Strube had planned to buy at auction the box brought by Miss Henninger, paying the highest price of the evening. After securing the box he asked to escort Miss Henninger home, but she refused. Soon after Miss Henninger left for home with her sister. Strube secured his horse and overtook them. Persuading both to ride, he took the youngest girl home, and before the older could get out Strube hurriedly drove away with her. That was the last time she was seen alive.

Searching Party Finds Body.

On the following Monday a searching party found the dead girl's body buried in a thicket on Strube's father's farm.

Strube was missing, and for days he led the officers a chase across country that finally ended with his arrest at Macon, Mo., after a large reward had been offered for his capture. He confessed that he killed Alice Henninger with a buggy wrench while in a jealous fit because she refused to marry him.

FARMER PLACES FEET BENEATH LOCOMOTIVE

Praises God as the Members Are Seized in Response to Instructions Imparted in a Dream.

Sterling, Ill., Sept. 13.—Matthews Olson, a religious fanatic, believing that he had received divine instructions to have his feet cut off by a locomotive, walked seven miles to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad tracks, nine miles southwest of this city, where he placed both feet over the rails and permitted the Barnstow passenger train at 5 o'clock in the morning to dismember them at the ankles. The engineer was unable to stop the train in time to prevent the accident. As the train did its awful work Olson praised God, from whom all blessings flow. He told the train crew that he was a disciple of God and that he was only doing penitence, such as God had directed him in a dream a few hours before. He protested against medical attendance, claiming that God would heal his wounds. Olson is a well-to-do farmer.

Chief of Police Downing says that the chauffeur took the governor's machine from the repair shop, where it has been since Labor day, and drove about the streets Sunday in a very reckless manner, speeding by cross streets at a rate of twelve to fifteen miles an hour.

The Belgians are the greatest potato eaters in the world, and the Irish come second.

other than that which furnishes them with a livelihood. The Cincinnati team, for instance, embraces but few experts at any other sport except baseball. Bob Ewing, the Reds' tall pitcher, is the only man on the team who has a practical knowledge of fast horses, he being the owner of one or two nags that have attracted attention at the county fairs in the central part of Ohio. The knowledge of horses possessed by the other members of the team is to be found in the dope sheets of the various race tracks. At shooting Peltz, Corcoran, Woodruff and one or two others are fairly expert, but not sufficiently so as to ever get them into a tournament in which marksmanship figured.

Fishermen there also are a few, with Peltz, Corcoran, Steinfieldt and several others interested in the sport, but only in a superficial way. There is not a bowler on the team who has attracted attention, the few men who are experts at rolling the big balls never having broken into the champion class. In the matter of boxing and wrestling there is not one good man in the entire aggregation, and other athletics are similarly poorly represented on the team. And what holds good of the Reds also is true of the other teams in the league. Of course there are some exceptions, but, on the whole, the baseball profession is remarkably deficient in men who can hold their own in any other sports or athletics.

RETURNS TO FACE CHARGES

Ex-Mayor Smith of Davenport, Iowa, Courts Investigation.

Davenport, Iowa, Sept. 13.—The return of ex-Mayor S. F. Smith to face the charges of embezzlement of over $100,000 of funds entrusted to him as manager of large estates has increased the interest here in the action of the September grand jury. It is expected to indict Mr. Smith on several counts, and it will probably require a week to submit the testimony against him. As ex-Mayor Smith is the son of Samuel Francis Smith, D. D., author of "America," his troubles have attracted widespread attention. They are the chief matter of interest in this city, where he lived as churchman, society man, business man and politician for years.
